THEY ARE BOLD AND ARROGANT Refusing to Consider the Wrongs

They Have Committed. NEXT WEEK THE CLIMAX COMES.

The Cabinet Has Determined That Chile Must Either Apologize Quickly or Fight.

WASHINGTON, January 12.-[Special.]-It looks today very much like we might have war with Chile.

The reports of the testimony at San Francisco have been read with great interest by congressmen here, and the situation is now looked upon as grave.

President Harrison has been very much exercised by the reports from San Francisco. He has received intimation from the Chilean minister, in an unofficial way, that the Chilean government would apologize for the outrages committed upon the American sailors, but has received nothing official from the Chilean government to Indeed, Chile has expressed no regrets at the outrages, and the president is beginning to believe that Chile is simply attempting to postpone action, and will finally try to arbitrate matters without making a straightout apology. Indeed, President Harrison has about reached the conclusion that the Chileans are as unfriendly, arrogant and offensive in their attitude as they have been at any time.

The matter was considered at a cabinet meeting this morning, and it was decided that in the event that no apology was received from the Chilean government by the early part of next week, the entire correspondence will be submitted to congress, and this government will take decided and firm

Thus, unless Chile makes amends for outrages of her citizens upon the Baltimore sailors, there is going to be war. The president and his cabinet are growing very tired of the bickerings that have been going on, and they are determined that matters shall be brought to an end. It is now with Chile whether she will apologize or fight, and that at once. The Free Silver Bill Will Pass. An unlimited free coinage bill will pass the house within less than thirty days. The committee on coinage, weights and measures meets tomorrow for the purpose of considering this question, and to make a re-port to the house. When the committee meets in the morning Mr. Pierce, of Tennessee, will offer a resolution providing for the immediate report of a free and unlimited silver coinage bill. Chairman Bland, of this committee, is probably the most enthusiastic free coinage advocate in America. He is the author of the well known Bland act, repealed last year, and has been fighting for free coinage for sixteen years. Indeed, the silver question is Mr. Bland's hobby, and there are few living men who understand it as thoroughly as he.

"I think we will decide to report a free coinage bill tomorrow," said Mr. Bland, this evening, "and I am going to call it up in the house on the day following, if it is possible. You may state emphatically, as coming from me, that the house will pass a free coinage bill in likewise. We don't know what the president will do with such a bill. His remarks in his message might have been a mere bluff. Certainly it is our duty to the people of the country to pass a free coinage bill, and send it to him. Then if he vetoes it he will be responsible before the country. In my opinlon it is absurd for our people to say, Don't pass a free coinage bill, because the president will veto it. You had just as well say congress must allow the president to dictate its legislation. The vast majority of the people of this country are for free coinage, and if Mr. Harrison should veto a bill of this character he will learn this to his sorrow in the next cam-

Two Fresh Youths.

The two freshest youths who have ever broken into congress are on the democratic One is Sherman Hoar and the other Fred Williams.

These are the two young men who made themselves so conspicuous in the speakership fight by declaring that the election of Judge Crisp would mean the overthrow of all democratic principles. These two brilliants even went so far as to dec.ine to vote for Judge Crisp when the election was held in the house between Crisp and Reed. They were present, however, but their refusal to vote for the nominee of the democratic caucus cannot be construed otherwise than to class them as enemies of the democratic party, although they persist in calling themselves dem-lished interviews, in which they assert that the passage of a free coinage bill by this house of representatives will mean the defeat of very democratic congressman from the New England states, and will further mean the passage of the force bill. Just how they get at the reasons for the assertion that the free coinage bill would mean a force bill is nameder stood. Still, they assert that New England democrats would prefer a force bill to a free coinage law. Indeed, these two young men imate that they would join the republicans in the adoption of a force bill in order to defeat free coinage. They further assert that free coinage would overthrow the democratic party, and would place the republicans in ver again in all three branches of congress. This alone is enough to demonstrate the very brilliant qualities of these fresh youths, scheme to have mail delivered and collected in the rural districts, as well as in the cities.

A number of bills providing for this were introduced, but were referred to the postoffice committee. It is probable that some bill of this kind will be reported, and it is possible

Whether this is done or not, it is quite certain that a bill providing for the free delivery of mail in towns exceeding 500 inhabitants will become a law at this session.

one might pass.

Among other important bills were several providing for the election of senators by the people. Also a number providing for an amendment to the constitution fixing the term of office of the president at six years and making him ineligible for re-election.

One of the most important bills introduced was an omnibus bill providing for the admission of the territories of New Mexico, Arizona and Oklahoma. This bill is certain to pass the house, as all three of the territories are democratic, which would add six to the number of democrats in the senate. Of course, however a fight will be made on this in the senate.

Egotistical Congressmen. In glancing over the lives of members of congress, as written by themselves in the congressional directory, one finds some very egotistical, and again some very amusing state-

Mr. Bullock, of Florida, makes the remarkable statement that he "is married and has a family of thirteen children." Mr. Otis, a third party congressman from Kansas, boasts of the fact that he "took an active part in recruiting the first colored regiment of Kansas, in 1862."

Mr. Davis, of Kansas, another third party congressman, makes the egotistical boast that he is widely known as an able and fearless writer on economic subjects."

Jerry Simpson tells us that he began life as a sailor at the age of fourteen, and served before the mast for twenty-three years. In 1878 he tells us that he drifted to Kansas, where he is engaged in farming and stock raising. Elijah Adams Morse, of Massachusetts, of stove-polish fame, makes the startling announcement that he "is married."

ABOUT TO AGREE.

The Behring Sea Question Takes a Favorable Turn.

Washington, January 12.—The Behring sea question was before the cabinet meeting today. It is understood that the case has taken a favorable turn within the past few days, and that Secretary Blaine has been advised that Lord Salisbury will agree to his suggestion as to the method of selecting three the arbitrators from countries which have on interest whatever in the questions at issue. When these three neutral arbitrators have been agreed upon there need be no further delay in deciding upon the personnel of the tribunal, it having already been arranged that the United States and Great Britain shall each the United States and Great Britain shall each have the appointment of two of the members. Another point settled is that one of Great Britain's representatives shall be a resident of Canada. The prospects are that one of 'the arbitrators on the part of the United States will be selected from the republican party and the other from the democratic party. Edward J. Phelps, ex-minister to England, is mentioned as most likely to be one of the arbitrators on the part of the United States.

THEY BLEW OUT THE GAS. Two Green Virginians Go North to Buy

"Green Goods." ELIZABETH, N. J., January 12.—Last evening two rustics, evidently southerners, arrived in this city and went to Ryan's hotel, where they registered as Reuben Bell and Silas Griffin, of Virginia. It was suspected that they were victims of "green goods" sharpers, and the police, who had shadowed them, went to the hotel. The countrymen retired early to their room, and when the clerk accompanied the officers there it was found that they had blown out the gas and were in danger of asphyxiation. On the table by their bed were two large Colt's revolvers. The Virginians were taken to police headquarters, where they admitted that they were to meet a man in Plainfield who was to sell them $31,000 for $300. for $300.

THE SUPERINTENDENT WAS ABOARD. A Train on the Western North Carolina

Strikes a Rock. CHARLOTTE, N. C., January 12.—[Special.]
A special train, on which was Superintendent V. E. McBee and Judge David Schenck, was wrecked six miles from Salisbury, on the Western North Carolina road, last night. The train consisted of an engine, coal car and Superintendent McBee's privcar and Superintendent McBec's private car. The only persons aboard the latter were Judge Schenck and Captain McBee, the conductor and the brakeman. Their train left Statesville for Salisbury a faw minutes left Statesville for Salisbury a faw minutes ahead of the regular passenger train. As a rocky cut was approached, six miles from Salisbury, the engineer saw a big rock slide down on the track just ahead of him. The rock had not become settled on the track when his engine struck it. The engine was thrown directly across the track, and it fell on its side, and the tender and car were jammed on it. The most wonderful part of the whole thing is that no one was hurt. the whole thing is that no one was beyond a few severe bruises.

SPREAD OF THE GRIP. No Abatement of the Malady in Germany and Austria.

London, January 12.—Advices from Paris show that the influenza continues to increase everywhere in France, and the number of Dispatches from Berlin and Vienna state that the disease shows no sign of abatement in Germany and Austria, though it is now, as a rule, of a less virulent type than previously. that country is that a large number of insane persons have been attacked. At Louvain, fif-teen miles northeast of Brussels, there is an insane asylum which has 500 inmates, 400 of whom are suffering with influenza.

TWO BROTHERS CONGERNED. One of Them Acquitted Because the Witnesses Could Not Identify the Right One. SAVANNAH, Ga., January 12.—[Special.]— Tenry Niles was tried in the superior court oday for the murder of Adam Berrien. The today for the murder of Adam Berrien. The killing occurred a few weeks ago, during a fracas at a negro wedding on Captian Purse's plantation. Berrien was struck on the head with a fence rail. A leading witness for the state, a colored woman, testified that she had made a mistake at the coroner's inquest, and that instead of Henry doing the killing, it was his brother Robert. Some swore positively it was Henry, and others were equally confident it was Robert. The jury accordingly acquited the prisoner. ngly acquitted the prisoner.

Hoar, and perhaps he can be instructed by his uncle in how to pass a force bill.

Such men as these youths would be about as serviceable to the democracy in the republican party as they are in claiming to be democrats.

Will Be Consolidated,

A NEW SCHEME,

by Olcott,

WILL WIPE OUT ALL OLD COMPANIES. THE MOUNTAIN NOW IN FULL ERUPTION.

The Greatest Consolidation of Railroad Interests Ever Known Now in Course of Evolution,

New York, January 12 .- A railway scheme of unprecedented magnitude is in process of perfection, full details of which will be made public in a few weeks. An evening paper claims to give the main facts of the case today in advance of the report of the committee of

The Rehabilitation of the System. The great scheme is the financial and physical reorganization of the Richmond and West Point Terminal Railway and Warehouse Company. Briefly stated the Olcott plan, when perfected, will present these details: In the first place the new company will be formed with a charter empowering it to act as a general proprietary company like the present Terminal company, but also with power to operate and manage its owned lines. For this purpose the charter of the company, called the Richmond, Danville and Southwestern Railroad Company, the company of the company pany, will probably be used. This charters, under examination by the company's lawyers now. It was granted by the state of Virginia about four years ago. If this charter is unavailable a new one will be obtained.

How It Will Go to Work.

The new company will then issue its securi-ties in exchange for those of the present companies composing the Terminal system, and Terminal securities, as representing the con-trol of subordinate roads, will also be exchanged. Original stocks and bonds will then go into the treasury of the new company.

It is thought and estimated that a complete exchange can be effected by the issuance by the new company of $189,000,000 of its bond and $136,000,000 of its stocks. These figures, at first, seem staggering, but when capitaliza-tion is adjusted to mileage, it will be seen that it is at the rate of less than forty thousand dollars per mile. No other section of the country can show a similar proportion of capitalization to mileage as this, the figures varying from one hundred and twenty-one thousand dollars mile in the middle states forty-eight thousand dollars per mile in the northwestern states. Exchanges of various securities of component roads for those of the new company will, in a large part have to be determined by the equities of the cases apart, to some extent, from market prices. This will also be in the hands of the Olcott committee. But there will be an obvious advantage to the holder of any Columbia and Greenville securities of the new company, which will be listed upon European bourses and have the advantage of an international

The Exchange of Securities.

The process of exchanging securities will be also much simplified by the fact that the Terminal company already owns all the Richmond and Danville stock, a majority of the Central of Georgia and a large portion of the East Tennessee company. Minority stockholders can come in or not as they see fit. The corporate existence of all railroads will be maintained as long as there are any unconthough the Terminal company owns all of of which are lost and the stock with them. But the great advantage of the plan is the fact that instead of three companies there will be one consolidated company, with one management to operate the whole system. The Saving of Expense. The saving of expense will be enorm the clashing of separate managements will be done away with, and the managers of the road can tell without trouble just what their income is and where it is to be applied. Of course, such details as interests on new bonds are undetermined. The rate will probably be 4h or 5 per cent. It is understood that a powerful bankers' syndicate has consented to underwrite the new securities when issued, and it is thought that the whole scheme will go through with as little friction as can be expected of a plan of such magnitude. The Election of Officers. RICHMOND, Va., January 12.—An adjourned meeting of the stockholders of the Richmond and Danville road was held here Richmond and Danville road was held here today, James B. Pace presiding. None of the northern stockholders were present, business being done by proxies sent to Mr. Pace and to the secretary. John H. Inman was relected president, and the following board of directors was chosen: Samuel Thomas, John G. Moore, John A. Rutherford, Samuel M. Inman, James B. Pace, Calvin S. Brice, C. M. McGee, George J. Gould, W. G. Oakum, James Swan, W. E. Strong and General T. M. Logan. The three last named are new members of the board. No other business was transacted.

He says she pawned her engagement ring to Smith for $5, and since having the ring he has tried to importune her to be unfaithful. Mitchell says he went to Smith tonight to redeem the ring, and that Smith refused to give it up and showed fight, so he shot him. The bullet passed through Smith's left arm. He is seriously, probably dangerously, hurt. Mitchell is in jail, and says he wishes he had killed Smith.

The People Compelled to Abandon Their Homes in Order to Escape from the Molten Death.

CITY OF MEXICO, January 12.-The volcano of Colima is in a state of violent eruption, throwing out tremendous volumes of lava, ashes and smoke, while the country for miles around is illuminated by the flames which burst from the craters, of which there are two.
Ashes are carried a distance of 400 miles by strong winds. Last Wednesday the eruption was particularly violent, and was accomthe collapse of a number of houses in the city of Colima. Earthquake shocks were also felt at as great a distance as Jalisco and Acapulco. So serious have the eruptions become that the government, believing that towns and villages in the vicinity are in danger, has ordered the residents to abandon their places of residence and move to places where their safety will be more fully assured.

The volcano of Colima consists of two wellshaped cones, one of which is called Volcano de Nieve, or snow volcano, which is not active. The chief volcano is the Volcano de Fuego, or fire volcano. It is one of the series of six volcanoes of Mexico which were formed in almost straight lines across the continent from the Gulf of Mexico to the Pacific ocean above a communicating volcanic rent in the crest of the earth, commencing east from the volcano of Orizaba, followed by Iztaccehault Popocatepetl, the volcano of Tuluac, the newly-formed Jorullo and ending with the volcano of Colima near the littoral of the Pacific. The altitude of the Volcano de Nieve is 14,118 feet. The Volcano de Fuego, which is more active, has an elevation of 12,533 feet and is one and three-quarters miles distant from the scene of the other. In 1869 there formed suddenly about eight hundred feet below the principal crater a new parasitic second crater which, since that time, like the upper one, has been in full activity.

Former Eruptions. The first destructive eruption of Colima of which there is record took place in 1611, continuing with more or less force until 1613. Ashes and azoria were thrown out a distance of 100 miles in circumference, destroying houses and churches in Guadalajara, Zapot lan and other towns. For the 130 succeeding years no eruptions attended by serious conse quences occurred, but in 1743 the restiess, surging abyss of molten fire again burst forth, doing great damage to the surrounding country.

In 1759 the new volcano of Jorullo rose up suddenly from a plain in the state of Michoa-can, 159 miles east of Colima, accompanied, so history relates, by "terrible thunderlike noises," succeeded by continuous earthquakes. The creation of the Jorulio volcano probably served as a blow-off for Colima, for it is asserted that during this epoch there were no eruptions from the last named volcano. A large part of the city of Zapotlan, situated fifty miles to the northeast of Colima, was destroyed by an earthquake in .1806 and more than two thousand persons lost their lives. verted securities outstanding, just as that of the Richmond and Danville now is, althereafter gradually calmed down and ceased disturbance until 1818, when a most violent eruption took place. The imprise gases below the crest lifted the surface of the lake of lava in their titanic efforts to find vent, and, released, bounded up with tremendous force, carrying jets, spouts and fountains of red, purple, golden and crimson lava high into the air. The natives living in the valleys below reported the scene as being one of indescribable splendor. Sand and ashes were thrown as far as Zacatecas and even as far as San Luis Potosi. The city of Colima was in great part destroyed, many lives being great deal of ashes, scorize and smoke was ejected each day, but no damage to human life or property resulted. Since that time both craters of the volcano have been in activity, but not to an alarming extent. At intervals steam was blown off as though the craters were acting as safety vaives of an immense boiler which may be represented by the surrounding country. Indeed, the natives liv-ing near regard the actual activity of the volcano as a safeguard, and usually become alarmed only when for some months there has Streams of Lava.

In December, 1885, a renewal of the violent In December, 1885, a renewal of the violent form of eruption took place, the lava flowing down the sides of the mountain and entirely enveloping it, while a dense white cloud overhung the summit, reflecting in a beautiful way the flames below. Fortunately, no serious disaster followed this eruption. In August, 1889, the volcano resumed its violence. A few days before the earthquake which visited Central America at that time the volcano vomited forth a dense black smoke, that hung like a pall over the country the volcano vomited forth a dense black smoke, that hung like a pall over the country for miles around. This phenomenon continued for several days and was accompanied at intervals by showers of reduct ashes, which descended upon its sides.

These spasmodic eruptions occurred ten or twelve times a day, and were followed by loud reports similar to the discharge of artillery. At night these sudden eruptions presented the appearance of fireworks on a gigantic scale, which illuminated the country for miles around, and made a grand and aweinspiring spectacle. The periodically occurfor miles around, and made a grand and aweinspiring spectacle. The periodically occurring present ejections or eruptions of the two craters consist of white aqueous vapors slightly sulphuric, rising balloon shaped often to an enormous height, where their vertically upward-working force is overcome by the winds, and there are driven away as flat clouds, or hover for a long time as thick, cloudy masses over the top of the volcano.
They are accompanied by the flow of lava and heavy falls of ashes.

Location of the Monster.

Location of the Monster.

The volcano of Colima is situated in the state of the same name, on the Pacific coast side of the republic. The ground on the west side of the state rises gradually from the side of the state rises gradually from the coast, and is frequently intersected by detached unconnected ranges of the Cordilleras, or "Sierra Madre," forming between them terrace-like, fertile plains, which make Colima one of the richest agricultural states in Mexico. The city of Colima has an attitude of 1,450 feet and contains 30,000 inhabitants.

It is fifty-eight miles from the seaport of Manzanillo, and is situated in the center of a plain which is perhaps seventy-five miles in circumference, and is traversed by several rivers and creeks. Southeast and west of the city are wooded mountains from two thousand to four thousand feet high, while to the north the ground again rises gradually until the double volcano of Colima, twenty miles away, pushes high up above the surrounding country into the limits of eternal snow. Colima's nearest neighboring peak is Nevado, twelve miles northeast, which is also volcanic. Twenty-five miles southeast is Mount Tanasula. These three peaks stand isolated from the main range of mountains that belt the western hemisphere from Alaska to Patagonia. They are the outposts or safety valves, as it were, between the volcanoes of North America and those of the Andes.

THE EARTH SHOOK.

A Monster Meteor Strikes the Ground and Is Buried There.

GADSDEN, Ala., January 12.—[Special.]— Tom Burgess and John Jones came into the city Monday morning and gave a most vivid description of the frightful disturbance which created so much consternation and wonder in this section of country last Saturday night. They were out hunting in the woods east of Gadaden, when, at about 8 o'clock, the heavens were suddenly illuminated with a lurid and ghostly light. They quickly looked upward, when they saw a large ball of fire in the air, which was approaching them at a rapid rate. It seemed about twice as large as a man's head, and almost at a white heat. As it passed within a few yards of them, it made a loud, whizzing noise and they felt the heat from it very sensibly.

It approached nearer and nearer the ground until it passed out of sight. In a few seconds they heard the tremendous report, which shook the whole country for miles around, and created great consternation among the people. Our informants state that they were too badly frightened to follow it up Saturday night, but early Sunday morning they went to the place where they last saw it and soon found where the meteor had struck the earth found where the meteor had struck the earth and plowed up a furrow about as large as a flour barrel and three or four feet deep, and then came out of the earth and struck a large pine tree, about six feet from the ground, shivering the tree, when it exploded, scattering its framents in every direction, cutting down small growth and tearing up the ground considerably. A few pieces of the matter were found so firmly imbedded in the tree that they could not get them out. The were found so firmly imbedded in the tree that they could not get them out. The pieces they found did not look like anything they had ever seen, and smelt strongly of burning sulphur.

The explosion was heard distinctly for a distance of seventy-five miles in all directions, and the concussion shook things up considerably. The houses shook and rocked as if by an earthquake. Table ware and brio-a-brac were shaken down and broken, and the people were badly frightened.

The superstitious negroes were so badly frightened that they sang and prayed all night and declared that the world was coming to an end. Many and varied stories are told, but the above are the facts as near as your reporter could learn them.

THIRTEEN MILES A DAY.

That Is the Record Made by an Old Mar of Eighty-One.

CARROLLTON, Ala., January 12 .- [Special.] David Aldrich, an old man aged eighty-one years, arrived here today from Acworth, Ga. He walked a distance of eight miles from his home to Acworth, and from there to Atlanta, and from the latter city to Anniston, making a distance of 146 miles. There he rested one day, when he resumed his journey of 130 miles, which makes a total of 276 miles. The time spent on the road by the old man to Anniston was seventeen days, and he completed his journey in ten days more. Mr. Aldrich was a confederate soldier, joining a Florida company, and was once a wealthy man, but the war broke him up en tirely. His business in west Alabama is to get witnesses in order to secure a pension. Mr. Aldrich differs from the majority of "oldest citizens" who usually never smoke, chew or drink, as his pipe is one of his few real comforts and solaces, but he hasn't drunk any intoxicants in late years. He expects to remain in west Alabama about a week, when he will return to his Georgia home in the same humble

John Jones, a negro friend of Hinson, was killed. In the confusion Hinson escaped, but Marshal Purdy organized a posse and captured him about midnight five miles from town. He was brought back and placed in jail, but at 2 o'clock this morning a mob took him out and hanged him to a tree. Both whites and negroes justify the lynching. The excitement has subsided, though Hinson's body is still swinging from a tree in the public

Clipped from a Northeastern Railway

CAUSES A RIPPLE IN MONEY CIRCLES

In Atlanta for a Few Hours During the Day Yesterday,

BUT IT IS ALL OVER NOW,

And the Holder of the Coupon Has Re-ceived His Money, and the State Is Not at All Liable.

Financial circles were startled yesterday by the report that the payment of interest on a Northeastern railroad bond endorsed by the state had been neglected by the Richmond and Danville.

There are $300,000 of these bonds. They were issued fifteen or twenty years ago on the Northeastern, which runs from Lula to Athens, That was in the latter part of Gov. ernor Colquitt's administration and not long prior to the adoption of the present state constitution.

When the Richmond and Danville secured control of the Northeastern it had to provide for the payment of the coupons on these bonds. And not a coupon was ever rejected for years. They were presented semi-annually and paid, sometimes at Athens, sometimes at the Richmond and Danville's headquarters and sometimes at the Fourth National bank in New York. A few days ago Rev. Mr. Hanson, whose home is at The Rock, Pike county, presented a coupon for $17.50 at the Capital City bank, Atlanta. The coupon was accepted and sent on to its New York correspondent, the Chemical bank. On Monday the coupon came back with the words written across it: "They don't pay

This was presumed to mean that the Richmond and Danville had neglected to provide for the payment, and the coupon was sent to the capitol to Treasurer Robert Hardeman. If the Richmond and Danville defaulted the state, as indorser, was liable. Colonel Hardeman explained that there was no appropriation with which to pay this interest, and he declined to take it.

That made the situation look more squally, and as the report got out holders of Northeastern and other Richmond and Danville securities grew somewhat uneasy. Finally, though, the coupon was sent to Treasurer Hall, of the Richmond and Danville, at the Kiser building.

BORN WITH GENIUS.

An Alabama Bay Who Knows All About Bird and Newspapers.

Bird, and Newspapers.

Florence, Ala., January 12.—[Special.]—One of the most remarkable young men in the south today, and yet the least known to the world, is Fred W. McCormack, age twenty years, whose home is in Leighton, Ala.

Young McCormack is a prodigy in more ways than one. Until a few months ago he had never seen a printing office other than the diminutive one he owned in Leighton. No one ever taught him to set type, but for the past twenty months he has been publishing as mall, two-column, eight-page paper at Leighton, doing the editing, typesetting and presswork himself. His paper is called The Leighton News and its publication was temporarily suspended this week in order that the young editor might attend school in this city.

His newspaper outfit consists of a few fonts of type and a small hand job press. With this meagerloutfit he has not only been publishing

His Knowledge of Birds. His Knowledge of Birds.
Besides being a typographical prodigy, McCormack is one of the best, if not the very best informed ornithologists in the state.
The study of birds has been a passion with him since early childhood. Before he commenced the publication of his paper he had become familiar with every species of birds that inhabit this section, and his collection of birds' eggs is considered the finest in the state. It comprises several hundred varieties and reprecomprises several hundred varieties and represents the labor of several years research on the

During the past year McCormack has been publishing a series of illustrated articles in his paper on birds and their characteristics. The articles were written by him and are not only instructive, but very interesting. If published in book form they would make a valuable ornithological work.

This remarkable youth is not yet twenty-one years old and is now a student at the State Normal college, in this city.

The Trains Came Together. The Trains Came Together.

EURAULA, Ala., January 12.—[Special,]—The west-bound passenger train, No. 9, and the east-bound through freight, No. 42, collided two miles east of Nontgomery about 7 o'clock a: m., foday, doing but little bodily injury to the crews and passengers. The engineers and firemen saved themselves by jumping. The fireman on No. 9 broke his ankle by the jump. Both trains were running about fifteen miles per hour, and neither engineer saw the approaching train until they were within 100 yards of each other, as it was raining very hard, and the place of the accident being on a sharp cuive. No. 9 was running behind time, and No. 42 had orders to that effect.

WHITE'S WILD MAN

HIS WILD CAREER BROUGHT TO A HALT.

A Daring Desperado, Who Held the People Under Terror by His Many Deeds

CLEVELAND, Ga., January 12 .- [Special.] -Yesterday evening about 4 o'clock, while it was bitter cold, an open wagon drove into town, and the first thing that attracted attention was a large, muscular looking man with his hands tied securely, and a big rope tied around his body several times.

He was a prisoner, and his name was Jim Jackson, a typical mountain desperado, to whose hands several unsavory crimes in White county are attributed, among which was the theft of several gallons of blockade whisky and an illicit still.

But he was at this time arrested on another

He was taken out of the wagon by his cus todians, and carried into the office of the Cleveland hotel, and he certainly appreciated the warmth emanating from a big log fire. But while he was warming, his custodians kept a close eye upon him. He was powerless, but they were afraid of him.

The Crime Laid to Him.

On Christmas eve a shooting match at White creek, by the aid of mean winisky in the hands of tough characters, was converted into a knock-down-and-drag-out riot, in which Jackson figured to some extent, and also some of the Edwardses.

Some days afterward Jim Jackson and George Edwards met at Stovall's mill, in this county, when Jackson made an attempt at Edwards's life with a thirty-eight caliber revolver. But Edwards was too quick for Jackson, and knocked him down with a ninepound weight. Jackson was stunned, but soon recovered from the blow.

He afterwards made threats on the life of Edwards, but a warrant was sworn out, and he was arrested.

Twice he escaped from durance vile, and was both times recaptured. Now They Have Him Again.

The second time he escaped hatless, coatless and in bare feet, and made his way fourteen miles in the snow and intense cold, wading Blue creek a distance of three miles to avoid leaving a track in the snow.

But his pursuers ran him down, and he is now lodged in Cleveland jail, but he will most probably be removed to some safer prison, as it is feared the jail here is unsafe, and that some of his clan will break into the building and release him.

and release him. He has been a terror to many parts of the county for several years, and it is hoped he will be placed in secure quarters and thor-oughly punished for his misdeeds. The wound he received was an ugly one in the forchead, and causes him intense suffering at times, but is not considered dangerous.

A variety of business was transacted by the county commissioners yesterday morning. Anything from a janitor' ssalary to building a new courthouse was discussed.

There never was really any reason for the existence of such affairs, and many sensible folks being finally convinced of this have put "Mr. and Mrs." on the envelopes for their afternoon recep tions this winter, and have made the hours nea enough one's 6 o'clock dinner to enable the gentle nen invited to attend.

Far be it from me, however, to decry the regular 5 o'clock tea indulged in by the people of Great Britain. No woman's living room is complete without a pretty and perfectly equipped tea table, and nothing is more refreshing to the inmates of a household than this comforting drink, taken upon coming in from a long walk of after several hours of uninterrupted work. The American woman has not yet, however, come into the full knowledge of the tea table. She seems to regard it as a special piece of furni-ture, meant to be used only on the one day when her cards announce her at home to her friends, and she has not yet adopted the cus-tom of afternoon tea drinking as a regular one. TWO OFFICES WERE CONSOLIDATED

And a Great Saving Will Be Made in the Matter of Salaries-Mr. Broughton's Resignation.

Hereafter the affairs of the alliance exchange will be conducted upon a more ecoomical basis than before.

A general reduction of salaries was made All around yesterday by the board of directors.
There were present at the meeting of the board W. L. Peek, president; W. A. Ecord, first district; R. M. Brown, second district; W. A. Wilson, third district; D. B. Wells, fourth listrict; T. J. Barrett, sixth district; L. S. Ledbetter, seventh district; H. P. Riden, ninth district; R. H. Pearce, tenth district.

minth district; R. H. Pearce, tenth district.

The meeting was called to consider the resignation of Colonel W. A. Broughton as business manager. It was presented and read. It is as follows:

To the Honorable Board of Directors of The Farmers' Alliance Exchange of Georgia—After my discovery of the shortage of ex-State Business Agent J. O. Wynn, you complimented me by unanimously electing me to take charge of the exchange as manager. I accepted the trust with fear and trembling, knowing as I did that the ex-business agent had left it in a most deplorable condition, and that he had almost bankrupted the institution, but I was determined, if God gave me the strength, I would replace your exchange on a firm financial basis.

The greater portion of the last three years of financial basis.

The greater portion of the last three years of my life has been devoted to the interest of the farmers and the alliance of Georgia, and I was willing to devote my time, talent and, if necessary, my money to keep the Farmers' Alliance exchange of Georgia from bankruptey. And now, I am proud to say, I think the exchange is upon a solid basis, having a large stock of corn, oats, flour and provisions of all kinds in warehouse and paid for, has a snug sum in bank to draw from, besides several thousand in bank placed to the interest account. The exchange is ready at any interest account. The exchange is ready at any time now to meet any and all drafts brought against it.

There not as yet collected all the amount of exBusiness Agent J. O. Wynn's shortage, but have it secured by stocks, real estate and security note.
Have not converted all the real estate into money on account of the duliness and stringency of the money market. I have worked for you faithfully.
I have devoted the best energies of my life to this cause, and I hope my efforts meet with your approval.

cause, and I hope my efforts meet with your approval.

I took charge of the exchange because I was determined, while it was in my power to prevent it, that the alliancemen of Georgia should not have their pet institution thrown into the hands of a receiver. I have reduced the running expenses $1,500 per annum, but think there is still room for retrenchment and reform. I claim now, as I have since the organization of the institution, that the expenses were too great, and that said expenses in a few years would materially decrease the capital. For instance, there is no use of a paid president and business manager. One man could perform both duties and as your honored president has been elected for one year, and the business manager simply appointed, I think the office of business manager ought to be done away with entirely. I do this for economy's sake and for the best interest of the exchange, Therefore I respectfully tender you my resignation as manager of the exchange to take effect February 1,1892.

With high regard for each and every one of

With high regard for each and every one of you, I am yours fraternally, WILLIAM A. BROUGHTON. After it had been read the following resolu-

After it had been read the following resolution was adopted unanimously:
Whereas, Brother William A. Broughton, the ousiness manager of the state alliance, exchange, has tendered his resignation of said office; and Whereas, The board of directors are profoundly impressed with the great value of the services rendered by Bro. Broughton in bringing to light the true condition of the exchange in its recent difficulties with the former business agent, and in saving the exchange from loss in connection with the same; therefore,
Resolved, That, in accepting the resignation of Brother Broughton, we return him hearty thanks for his invaluable services, and express our boundless confidence in his integrity and business capacity.

The recommendation of Colonel Broughton that the offices of president and business manager of the exchange should be consolidated, was taken up and discussed. It met with general favor, and by a vote of the board, the two were consolidated. Mr. W. L. Peek was elected to the position of president and manager at a salary of $1,800 per annum.

The recommendation of Colonel Broughton

The salary of Secretary Ledbetter was reduced from $600 to $300 per annum.

Mr. Broughton has made a splendid business manager and leaves the affairs of the exchange in fine shape.

THREE WOMEN

They Are Charged with Having Set a House Afire.

THEIR CASE TO BE CALLED TODAY

Before Judge Landrum-One Is Annie Searcy, and She Was Released on Bond-The Others Negroes.

Annie Searcy, the woman whose house was burned night before last, will appear this afternoon at 2 o'clock before Justice Landrum. She will be called upon to answer the charge

Two negro women, Minnie Hamilton and Mamie Whitaker, will be arraigned accused with being accomplices in the case,

The three women were arrested and locked up early yesterday morning. Several hours before Officer Patterson was patroling Thompson street. The smell of

He went to it and notified her. Without the least concern the reply came quickly:
"Oh, it's nothing but a rug that I threw into the fire," and the woman resumed reading a

A few minutes later two inmates, Minnie Thompson and Florence Brown, came home. They had told the proprietress of their sumbefore the police commissioners to testify against an officer.

As soon as they entered they detected the smell of smoke.

Immediately they ran out to give an alarm, and then quickly returned to save their be-longings. They reached their rooms, which were adjoining, and were astonished.

Before they left they had placed the keys on the inside. The doors were now locked, and the keys could not be found.

The firemen quickly responded, and the fire was traced to the rooms of the two girls. The doors were burst open, and a stifling smoke immediately issued.

Almost blinded, the firemen went to work

Almost blinded, the firemen went to work and soon had the blaze extinguished. Then the beds were found burned almost up.

The suspicion of incendiarism was such that Detectives Bedford, Looney and Cason were immediately put to work on the case. They found that Annie Searcy and two negro women, Minnie Hamilton and Mamie Whitaker, were the only ones who had been at the house when the fire was discovered.

For several hours the officers were at work.

Such ar organization would consist of a small force of clerks whose duty it would be to keep a record of the arrival and departure of all freight cars. Notice must be given promptly to consignees when cars arrive, and it would be the duty of the association to do that. The demurrage charge on package freight is not to exceed ten cents per ton on carload lots, and one cent per hundred pounds on less than carload lots where the cars are not unloaded within forty-eight hours after notice is given, Sundays and legal holidays not being counted.

If what we learn be true the depot when completed will be the handsomest and most conveniently arranged one between Atlanta and Montgomery. It is earnestly hoped by our people, and the traveling public generally, that at no distant day our long felt want may be realized. The present accommodations are altogether inadequate for the passenger and freight traffic.

some Union Depot.

The proposed new union depot strikes the fancy of the railroad men. Most of them would be glad to see a commodious and handsome building in the neighborhood of the Western and Atlantic's shops.

Atlanta's rapid growth has made the present depot facilities inadequate. Take the East Tennessee, for example. While it pays $1,200 a mouth for the privilege of running into the depot, it does not get under the shed, or at least not often, and has to take a track butside.

The tracks under the shed are crowded several times every day. When railroad men are asked how the facilities there can be enlarged they say that they see no way except to encroach on the restaurant.

There was a plan to put the baggage room across Wall street and have it transferred through a tunnel under the street. This would require elevators and it never met the full approval of the railroad reports.

The following communication will explain itself:

EDITOR CONSTITUTION—I notice that G. E. Stillman, "president pro tem.," has written a card in which he states that he does not believe that the card signed as this one is, which appeared in yesterday morning's Constitution, was written by any of the men belonging to the Street Railway Employes' Union, and surmising that it was written in THE CONSTITUTION office by an em-ploye. #Brother Stillman also says that THE CON-STITUTION refused to print the news which would have benefited the strikers Saturday night

Now I know all about this matter, and do no propose to see THE CONSTITUTION misrepresented.

Now I know all about this matter, and do no propose to see The Constitution misrepresented. If I had wanted him to know who wrote the card I would have signed it. But for reasons suitable to myself, the signature below is satisfactory. My name is not necessary. What the public wants is information.

As stated in my card in Tuesday's Constitution, that paper has been perfectly fair with us, and we recognize the fact that there is no selfish motive behind it. Not a line which has been sent to The Constitution in writing has been withheld, but on the other hand, every appeal that we have made has been given to the public through its columns, and it published our first address in full at our request. As to the complaint that something was left out Saturday night, I have found on inquiry that nothing has been left out purposely, and that The Constitution has given every assurance that its reports would be perfectly impartial, as they have been.

I think Brother Stillman has gotten us into

The Constitution has given every assurance that its reports would be perfectly impartial, as they have been.

I think Brother Stillman has gotten us into enough of trouble at present and that it would be well for him to go out and soak his head.

In this connection let me say that some of the speeches of the blooming young jay birds who have been advising us what to do, at the courthouse, have been very amusing. I hear that that littleffellow Manning who devoted his time Tuesday hight to criticising The Constitution, has been swarming around that office for a job for the past week, and that only a few days ago it extended him, at his request, the courtesy of transportation from Attanta to Birmingham and return. He has been, I hear, recently "bounced" by The American Press Association, and is therefore in a splendid position to advise other people out of a job what to do.

Oh, these blooming young crators do amuse us, and no wonder everybody in town is talking about them. However, all this information does not interest me especially. I simply investigated, on seeing the insidious effort being made from another quarter to injure The Constitution, to satisfy myself, and I have given it to the public for what it is worth.

And now let me in conclusion ask why it is that Brother Stillman wants to attribute my card to any other source than to me? I quote the coaclusion of my first card, and will ask what is there in the sentiment that would make him think that any one else but a believer in our cause was reclusion of my first card, and will ask what is there in the sentiment that would make him think that any one else but a believer in our cause was responsible for the card. This is what I said:

"As for the strike against the Consolidated company, we believed that we were doing right and stood on principle. If others have been chosen to fill the phaces vacated by us, we at least have the satisfaction of knowing that we did what we thought right, and that we fought for a principle, which should be, if it is not sustained."

If The Constitution wrote it, and that is the paper's sentiment, why should Brother Stillman be kicking?

Let the Majority Rule.

There is a good deal of surplus and unnecessary discussion going on in regard to the democratic policy, and this will continue to be the case until the party in congress gives definite shape and form to its purposes. It is a matter that can be disposed of without any trouble or inconvenience, and the sooner it is done

There are democrats who are willing to mold the party policy to suit the views of a favorite candidate, and who are aching to see democracy take its stand, by indirection at least, on the financial platform of the republicans. There are others who desire to see the campaign of 1888 repeated by sending the party to the people on a defensive tariff campaign. There is confusion where there ought to be unity. This is shown by the fact that Mr. Springer, after making in his New York speech an allusion to the silver question which would seem to be incapable of misconstruction, has found it necessary to explain it. There are other symptoms of confusion which need not be dwelt on here. Discussion is developing into controversy, and some of the -brethren seem to be more anxious to belittle a possible rival of their favorite than to discover anew to their readers the wrongs and oppressions of republicanism. Whims and notions are mistaken for party principles and the chief object of the democratic organization-which is to secure control of affairs so that the government may be administered in the best interests of the whole people-is in danger of neglect and forgetfulness.

gress are not authorized to formulate the party platform, but it is their duty to lay down a programme of legislation which will not only unify and harmonize conflicting views, but which will give a practical and progressive tendency to the purposes of the party. To this end let the democrats of the house get together in caucus and arrange a tentative plan of legislation which will serve to give form and expression to the views and desires of the majority. Let the majority fix the legislative policy; let the majority settle on the form that is to be given to the tariff issue, on the shape that the silver question is to take, and on the emphasis that is to be given to both.

It is true that the democrats in con-

the democrats in congress take into the caucus whatever differences may exist among themselves and settle them there.

A Few Timely Words

In many localities in the south it is feared that the wholesale merchants will press the country merchants, and cause them to resort to extreme measures in the matter of collections, thus forcing the farmers to the

The Grenada, Miss., Sentinel has a thoughtful editorial on the subject, which is strongly endorsed by The Memphis Commercial. The trouble is, according to our contemporarles, that the wholesale merchants, feeling the stringency of the times, but not understanding the peculiar condition of affairs, will yield to a panicky apprehension and proceed to coerce immediate settlements from the country dealers. But, concludes The Sentinel, "if the jobber and his customer could be brought into a relation of greater confidence and thorough comprehension of existing conditions, the great dangers which threaten many of the southern merchants can be largely averted," and our esteemed contemporary argues that "the wholesale merchant should recognize the full truth and help out their country customers. Let the matter of threatened protests of paper and the mad rush for attachments be put out of sight for awhile, and let sympathy and co-operation and honest confidence and help be the watchwords for a time. Sixty or ninety days would save many a merchant now hanging back with all his might and main from the chasm of commercial failure, and who is growing gray in his anxiety and efforts to save himself, his creditors and his estate from sacrifice and destruction. We are satisfied that the wholesale merchants, as a class, would be wise, prudent and generous did they but understand the peculiar condition of business now heavily felt in southern mercantile

This is good advice, and so far as we have een imformed, it is the line of conduct Plopted by the wholesale houses in Atlanta 2D other cities in Georgia. The city meroffers are able to stand by their customers ed and deserve help, and they will do can reasonably be expected. This chants to accommodate the farmers, and mutual forbearance and help all along the line will save the south from the worst of the evils that go along with hard times. But distrust, hurried collections, and compulsory methods will destroy credit everywhere, and spread a general paralysis throughout every circle of commercial industry. We are all in the same boat, and we must help each other.

Insulting the Democrats of Texas.

The Galveston News pretends to be a democratic newspaper; it claims, in fact, to be the leading democratic newspaper in a state which gives larger democratic majorities than any other commonwealth in the union. Yet, in its issue of last Monday it contains a leading editorial which ought to damn it in the minds of every democrat, not only in Texas, but in the whole country. In the editorial article to which we refer, The Galveston News quotes from the address of the republican state committee of New York, and supplements its quotation by making a vicious attack on David B. Hill. The republican address was dictated by Platt. It is aimed not only at Governor Hill, but at the highest court in the state. It emanates from a party which has never hesitated at any criminal or corrupt act, and which, though a minority party, has managed, by all the sinister methods that belong to fraud, to keep itself in power. It has stopped at nothing, and Plattism has become to be a synonym for political dishonesty and indecency. Platt's state committee has seen fit to issue a partisan address in regard to recent events in New York state. with which our readers are familiar. It is a perfunctory affair, not intended to be taken seriously, but The Galveston News, a pretended democratic newspaper, devotes a column of its editorial space to synopsizing and quoting from the Platt address, and then practically endorses it! Observe the combination-a leading democratic newspaper in the greatest democratic state in the union approving and endorsing an attack of the Platt republicans on David B. Hill! "This is strongly and reasonably put." says this pretended democratic news paper. "Mr. Hill may hold receptions in Washington, but the good people of New York state and many others will inot honor him for making the party solid in the legislature if the facts are as stated by the repub licans." We are then told by this pretended democratic newspaper that Governor Hill 'has struck his worst blow against the integrity of representative government, and his party will be responsible and will yet feel the effects of it, if lit seems to endorse the author of such a policy."

Now, The Galveston News is as familian with the facts as anybody. It knows that every act of Governor Hill in the recent contest has been endorsed by the highest court in the state of New York; it knows that Governor Hill was engaged in a fight to restore the government of the state to the people; and it knows that the outcome of it all is the most signal victory for democratic principles and the democratic party in this generation-the most important and the most far-reaching. Knowing all this, The Galveston News, for the purpose of belittling this great democrat, practically endorses the slanderous attack of Platt's republican committee. For the same purpose, we have no doubt. The Galveston News would betray its party and destroy it.

We all know the position David B. Hill occupies in democratic esteem. When he was sworn in as senator the democratic leaders of the nation there assembled crowded around him to do him honor, and the ovation they gave him-spontaneous. unaffected, overwhelming-has had no parallel in the senate chamber. He needs no defense. But what do the democrats of Texas think of the position of The Galves ton News? It is an insult to their party and a disgrace to the state. When a pretended democratic newspaper, in order to belittle a great democrat, descends low enough to endorse an official republican slander, it is time for the democrats of Texas to open their eyes. The performance is sensational enough to attract attention.

In a Healthy Condition.

The stringency of the money market, the low price of cotton and the depression in other branches of business have had no visible effect on the weekly press of Georgia. While some of the editors complain of dull times and the absence of wood, the majority seem hopeful and in good condition.

Indeed, the progress made by the weekly press during the past year is most remarkable. More new papers have been established, and old ones have been enlarged and otherwise improved. Improvement seems to be the watchword of the hour, and the people are getting more for their money, in the newspaper line, than they have ever received before In their general tone and make-up, our Georgia exchanges will compare favorably with the press of any other state. Their policy is sound; their doctrine, for the most part, wholesome; their criticism clear, candid and intelligent, and their editors clever.

We rejoice in this state of affairs; the prosperity of the weekly newspaper is identical with that of the people it represents; it is the index to their life-their certificate of good character. It is the duty of the people to sustain the press, as the press sustains the

We expect great things from the weekly press in this year of grace and politics. In will have great work to do, and it will do it with a will. One after another the papers are falling in line, and, when the roll is called before the battle, they will be there-to fight, as ever, for the welfare of the state and the triumph of the national democracy.

More Help for Fayetteville.

A number of contributions have been made for Fayetteville, but the relief has not gone far enough. Something will have to be done to raise a shelter for the homeless people-now nearly a hundred in number.

A pathetic appeal is made for lumber to raise a shelter and brick to restore the hearthstones which the cruel storm swept away Contributions of this kind will be a Godsend. Once under shelter, the people can find some way to earn a living. They want twenty-five chimneys in Fayetteville, and enough lumber to surround them and enough shingles to raise roofs over the heads of the homeless; nails and hinges and something to make windows will come in well. If these can be secured and the other railroads will duplicate the proposition of the Atlants and it possible for the country mer | Florida road to transport the contributions.

Painted tapestry is making its way as a decora-tion in esthetic homes. It has a charm of its own and quite different from that of the conventional oil painting on canvas. New York is running to oration is secure from the fate of a mere fleeting fad. It has come to stay, and as New York goes so goes this whole country in the matter of taste and fashion. One might as well be out of the fashion as not in it. At the so-licitation of some Peachtree fashionables, Miss Georgia Green has brought from a Fifth avenue studio about half a dozen fine specimens of painted tapestry, and has bung then in her studio, in the Gould building, for the in-

There are two fruit pieces, a piece representing water flags, an exquisitely colored painting of a French maiden, a muse playing on a lyre, a Dutch kitchen scene, a picture representing a happy young couple receiving congratulations, and another entitled "Love's Tribute." All of these are beautiful to look upon and the desire to possess comes with the first glance at them. An opportunity to see such an exhibition rarely comes outside of the large cities, and the unfortunate part of this one is that he paintings, all of which are large, remain here

THE SENATORIAL RACE.

A Card from Secretary Freisleben, of One of the Committees Appointed Last Year. The following card will explain itself. It was handed to THE CONSTITUTION yesterday by Mr. A. Freisleben, who was secretary of the executive committee appointed by the Todd contingent of the last district senatorial convention. In handng the card, Mr. Freisleben said:

ing the card, Mr. Freisleben said:

"We think that there is no doubt but that our committee is the only regularly authorized committee of the district in that the nominee of that portion of the executive committee which appointed us was elected by the people to the senatorship. This shows that the people endorsed the wing of the convention which named our committee, and we have, therefore, considered that the other executive committee is not in it."

"Messrs. Frank Arnold, H. E. Jordan and J. R.

Mr. Albert has since died, and I was chosen by the other members of the committee from this county in his place. The committee organized by electing Mr. Arnold chairman and myself secretary.

Good Advice About the Speakership Race and Its Results.

ATHENS, Ga., January 11.—Editor Constitution Party exigency sometimes requires that the truth should be spoken out plainly, though to do so may be attended with somewhat of unpleasantness. I notice that quite a number of newspapers through-out the country, that were friends and supporters of Mr. Mills in the recent speakership contest, are now engaged in a work, which, to say the least, seems to be rather undemocratic and unpraiseworthy.

They seem determined on giving the election of Hon. Charles F. Crisp as speaker of the house of representatives a decided bearing on the fate and fortunes of the national democracy and the issues of the approaching presidential election. This certainly was not the design or expectation of certainly was not the design or expectation of Mr. Crisp and his friends, nor, in truth and fact, has such been the result. What, however, if such should be the result? Where, I would ask, is the tharm which is to come to the democratic party, or the danger which is to threaten the democratic is-sues to be involved in the next presidential elec-

Is not Mr. Crisp just as good a democrat; just as good "a tariff reform democrat;" just as good "a free coinage of silver democrat;" just as good a man and democrat in every respect as Mr. Mills? Has not the democratic party just as much right to expect and just as certain to receive aid, and valuable aid, at the hands of Speaker Crisp, of Georgia, as it could have expected, or received, at the hands of Speaker Mills, of Texas? Those who are acquainted with the two men; who have taken the trouble to examine into their respective records, and who are capable of making up a fair, just and impartial judgment, will not for one just and impartial judgment, will not for one moment question the truth that the democratic party and its great interests are just as safe, and will be as carefully and patriotically guarded in the hands of Mr. Crisp and his friends, as they possibly could have been in the hands of Mr. Mills and his friends.

These newspapers which have result and his friends.

These newspapers which have not accepted the result with that true democratic spirit which they should have done; those malcontents which have not acquiesced in the election of as good and true a democratas ever honored a seat in congress, to democrat as ever honored a seat in congress, to the speakership, and gone to work as true demo-crats, and as they should have done, to help and strengthen the democratic party, seem to ignore entirely the question of personal popularity, which is a most potent factor in the selection and election of a preciding officer.

Notwithstanding, Mr. Mills, in the midst of his sore disappointment, has seen fit to write to Notwithstanding, Mr. Allis, in the midst of his sore disappointment, has seen fit to write to a friend in Texas, "that in failing to elect him to the speakership, a great cause was defeated." Yet, it is a fact well known to the country, that there was no division or disagreement upon party issues in the contest between him and Mr. Crisp. It was simply democrat against democrat, and the strongest and most popular democrat and the

It was simply democrat against democrat, and the strongest and most popular democrat won.

Far be it from me to ever attempt to disparage Mr. Mills as a good and true democrat, and as an able and gifted statesman. He is, in all these respects, all that his most ardent and devoted friends and followers can claim for him, but in the speakership contest there was lacking in him that personal popularity so essential to success and which cansed his defeat.

As an ex-member of congress, having served with Mr. Mills in the fiftieth and fifty-first congresses, I know, as do a great many others who with Mr. Mills in the fiftieth and fifty-first congresses, I know, as do a great many others who have served with him, that it was his want of personal popularity among the rank and file on the democratic side of the house which caused his defeat. As I have said, Mr. Mills is an able man and experienced statesman. He has been a number of years in congress, and was the able chairman of the ways and means committee in the fiftieth congress. He was in a large degree the author of the tariff reform measure of that congress, known as the "Mills bill." These facts author of the tariff reform measure of that congress, known as the "Mills bill." These facts would seem to have entitled him, in some measure, to the speakership, but then he, like a great many other good men, is possessed of a fiery nature, which, not being held under control at all times, does, in no small way, disqualify him for leadership and the position of presiding officer.

The old members of congress knowing and remembering this trait in his character, could not gain their consent to vote for him for speaker, and hence his defeat. This was predicted of Mr. Mills long before the race came off—during the sessions of the fiftieth and fifty-first congresses, and that is all that there is in it.

I write this letter, not solely because I was a friend and advocate of Mr. Crisp in his race for the speakership. Personally, I myself, like and admire Mr. Mills, for he was universally kind and courteous to me while in congress. I write as a democrat, and because I think the country at large should know the facts, and not be deceived or misguided by the continued howlings and fault findings of those who seem not to know how to accept defeat gracefully and with an eye single to democratic harmony and success. This Mr. Mills and his friends should do, as certainly Mr. Crisp and his friends would have done, remembering that by sulking and keeping up dissensions in the party they may, perchance, "defeat a great cause," and do more to endanger the triumph of their party and democratic principles in 1892 than the election of Mr. Crisp or any other man to the speaker-ship of the house of representatives. Talking Democratic Sense.

From The Sparta, Ga., Ishmaelite.

The Ishmaelite is not an advocate of Hill's nomi nation for the presidency. It is of the opinion that New York should not furnish the nominee for either place on the ticket. Still, it does not hesitate to say that if the nomination is to be permitted to go to that state, it very decidedly refers Senator Hill to Mr. Cleveland, simply beause he is the more popular in his state abler and more consistent democrat of the two Mr. Cleveland has not been popular with his party in New York sine his presidential term, for the reason that, while president, his democracy was subordinate to his passion for making mugwumps happy. And, more recently, when he supported the republican municipal candidates in opposition to the demomunicipal candidates in opposition to the demo-cratic nominees in New York city, he presented to democrats a conclusive reason for preferring some other leader. Senator Hill has never spent days and nights devising ways and means of dissatisfy-ing democrats by making mugwumps feel that all the earth is theirs, that only in their smiles can there be peace and joy, forevermore.

The probabilities are that the New York delegates to the Democratic convention will vote as a unit for David B. Hull. Will sufficient force attach to that to make him the nominee of the party?
If it should, what will become of the Cleveland papers that have spent months in denouncing Will they become members of the "Hill gang" themselves and move along with the Demo-cratic procession? If so, they would feel better for a cessation, now, of their senseless abuse of a leader, whose only fault seems to grow out of the fact that, at home, he is regarded by the men who make democratic majorities as a truer or better exponent of Democratic methods and principles than Grover Cleveland.

Colonel Hill. From The Griffin, Ga., News, Dem.

Our Washington special yesterday speaks of Senator David B. Hill as "Colonel Hill"—and truly he is a colonel. As the greatest commanders are called captains, and the greatest of these was known as "the little corporal," what is more fitting than to call the greatest leader of the greatest party in the greatest country a colonel?
A colonel down here in Georgia is a man of some prominence, but not so prominent as to be too far above his fellow mortals, because there are too many colonels for that. But there are colonels and colonels, and, no matter how great a man may become in this state, he cannot outgrow the rank of colonel. And so we rather like the sound of Colonel Hill.

There can be no doubt that Colonel Hill is the most prominent figure in the democratic party most prominent agare in the democratic party today. Those contemporaries who assumed to doubt his standing in the party have been tem-porarily paralyzed into silence by reading the dispatches, sent by their own correspondents, of the ovation tendered him when he was sworn in as a senator. It is said that no other man was ever the object of such a demonstration, on a like occasion. That it was merited no one can ask as he turns fresh from the contemplation of the flawless victory which has given the greatest state in the union safe into the hands of the democratic party to have and to hold, an achievement which, in magnitude and perfectness of success, stands unparalleled in party history as the sole forvof one man who never had gone outside the effort of one man who never had gone outside the lines of state polities. Detraction is obliged to hold its tongue as it comemplates the results accomplished by one who had been a favorite object of its ridicule.

There is certainly no reason why any democrat should withdraw his admiration and appreciation from Colonel Hill. A truer democrat or better one never proved his devotion to his party, and this not by the precision of platitudes but he this not by the reception of platitudes but by earnest work that counts for success. That his services should make him a presidential preference does not at all follow. There are greater things than being president, and one of these is to be a colonel like Colonel Hill.

The law that the legislature passed stipulates that such a camping ground shall be established, and appropriates $25,000 each year for the support of the establishment.

What is to be done? is the question that is worrying some of the members of the advisory board.

The law is pretty plain on this point.

Here it is: Section 1. Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Georgia, That the military advisory board of this state are hereby authorized and empowered to select and prepare a permanent camp site to be used for the annual encampment of the Georgia vocunteers in such part of the state and upon such terms and conditions as to said board may seem best; provided, that said board may have authority to order any command or com-mands of the state forces into camp in any other locality than at such permanent sites, under such regulations as may be under such regulations as may be placed upon them by the board; provided further, that no expenses shall be incurred by the state in establishing the encampment in addition to the

There wasn't much involved in the case but it had its unique and humorous features. It was the case of Wessels & Co., a New York firm, against A. M. Shomo, the produce

From the claim set up by the plaintiff, it appears that Mr. Shomo had bought several cars of bananas from Wessels & Co.

The settlement made for them was not very satisfactory to Wessels & Co., but Sh claimed that one car of the bananas was badly damaged. Here the difference arose, and here the suit came in. Wessels & Co. sued for the amount which they still claimed was due them by Mr. Shomo. Glenn & Maddox represented the plaintiff, and Mayson & Hill represented Mr. Shomo.

Every phase of the case was presented to the jury, and that body, after deliberating over the evidence, returned a verdict which was something in the nature of an eye-opener.

money, every cent of it, and then, boarding a train, said that he was going to his home in Welliford.

She wanted to go along, but was met with a rough reply to the effect that there was not enough money for two. Then the girl began to wander about the streets in search of some one who would defray her expenses to her husband. She was married to him a month ago, and her confidence in him was unshaken.

On Whitehall street she met Spence, who, according to her statements, represented himself as the mayor, marshal. Jumbo Hunter and every other local official of importance.

The woman went with him and he took her to the Cannon house under various pretenses.

Then the ignorant, poorly clad country woman, accompanied by a well-dressed, intelligent looking man aroused suspicion and she was sent to the office of Captain Thompson.

was sent to the office of Captain. Thompson. Spence was allowed to go.
Early in the morning the girl had called and asked about her money and missing husband, and then went to see what she could do.
Her story was told in such a way as to arouse sympathy and a belief in the girl's innocence. She is about eighteen years of age and there is no doubt about her hitherto rustic life.
The young woman will probably be sent back home today and an effort made to get her husband. She gives her maiden name as Mary McCormick.

Janauschek.

The management of the opera house beg to announce for Thursday, at matinee and at night, the popular favorite and sterling artist, the peerless Janauschek, supported by a selected company of metropolitan actors. She will present on that occasion for the first time in this city, her new and beautiful romantic drama, "The Harvest Moon," written expressly for her by James M. Martin. This is the only play in which this queen of the histrionic art will appear this season. The part of Mrs. Oakley, which Janauschek assumes, is an entirely new departure for her, and shows her wonderful versatility. It affords her an opportunity to display those great talents which have made her celebrated on two continents. But, while this is pronounced to be one of Janauschek's strongest creations, the minor roles are equally strong, and have been well distributed among capable players.

"The Dazzler." Janauschek.

"The Dazzler."

A jolly farce-comedy, entitled "The Dazzler," will be the attraction at the opera house next Friday and Saturday. The event promises to be a notable one in the list of this seasons's attractions. Miss Castleton brings to the play a charming personality, and a popularity second to none of the footlight favorites: unique in her style and original in her acting and singing, she has a peculiar charm and magnetism that enchain her auditors. Reconstructed and improved; new songs, medleys and specialties; bright, sparkling and refined; brim full of mirth and wit; a coterie of charming girls, and a lot of clever comedians, the comedy leaves nothing to be desired for an evening of jollity and fun, pleasing both the eye and the ear. "The Dazzler."

As the modern railroad train is ahead of the old-time stage coach, so is Hood's Sarsaparilla, a modern medicine, ahead of the old-time remedies. In positive merit is is peculiar to nute bodies in the world. Within the past few years these microbes have been brought to view by the microscope, a vast multitude that no man can number. The ravages of this mighty host are great, being the cause of fourfifths of all the diseases of the human family. They destroy more lives than war, famine, fire, murder and shipwreck combined, and they actually abbreviate the average term of human life by three-fourths. The old treatment of mercury and potash would at best only hold the symptoms of the disease in check, but in the meantime it often kills the patient, and the microbe still lives.

Comptroller Goldsmith yesterday footed up the returns of the license taxes for the past year, and he smiled contentedly. It meant a substantial increase over the year before, and he was proud of it. He showed the figures to the finance con mittee in the afternoon, and the members were

Some delinquent license payers have various aethods of avoiding the payments of the in-

The latest was easily defeated yesterday.

When Tax Collector Maddox took his mail yesterday morning he saw several letters and smiled significantly.

Inside were checks for licenses, dated January 9th—the last day—and with it a note, also dated on last Saturday.

But the envelopes were the little tell-tales. They were post-marked the 11th, and in the afternoon at that. The whole was turned over to Marshal Loyd and the $1.50 will have to be forthcoming for each. o be forthcoming for each.

Some Important Matters.

The national board of trade is going to take up some important matters for consideration at its meeting on the 28th.

President R. B. Bullock, Vice President R.

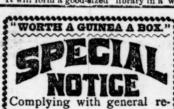

D. Spalding and Secretary J. G. Saunders are going to it and they expect an unusually interesting gathering of three days.

The national bankrupt law will come up.

That is the bank bill which the board has asked Representative Torrey, of St. Louis, to introduce in congress. It provides that all bankrupt cases shall come under the jurisdiction of the United States courts.

why he is there.

The story back of Mr. Hathcock's imprisonment is part of the court records of Fulton county and is well known.

Mr. Hathcock is one of the best known citizens of Campbell county and owns considera-ble property. Besides a splendid farm he has an interest in a large mercantile establishment owns two or three mills, and is pretty well off with the world's goods.

Some time last year a charge was brought against him by Mr. A. P. Morgan, of this city. The charge was cheating and swindling. The case was tried in the city court and Hathcock was found guilty. He was sentenced to pay a tine of $1,000, or six months imprisonment in the Fulton county jail.

Mr. Hatchcock, through his attorneys. ried the case to the supreme court. This tribunal reviewed the case, and, after doing so, affirmed the decision of the lower court.

Two alternatives were placed before Mr. Hatchcock: To lay in jail six months, or pay $1,000. Mr. Hatchcock viewed it in the light of a business man. He could easily raise the

But he reasoned: "I could not make $1,000 in the six months. The best way out of it is to go to jail."

He adopted this plan as a matter of economy, and went to jail. He takes the difficulty very philosophically, and will be content to endure confinement and the separation from his family to save $1,000. He has been a prominent man in his section for several years.

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, January 12.—The stock market today settled down to an ordinary volume of business, al-though there was decided activity in the first and last hour, in each of which all the important movements of the day were made. The bears continued their attacks, but not with the same success that attended their efforts yesterday, and the most conspicuous result of their operations has been to increase the outstanding their operations has been to increase the outstanding short interest in the market, which places speculation n much better shape, as stop-orders have, it is believed, been about closed out by the execution of some New England today. The buying throughout was of a much better character than the selling, and the declines were in all cases unimportant and of short duration, while the weakness in Distillers may be taken as sample, completely disapprepring after the first, raid. sion, while the weakness in Distillers may be taken as a sample, completely disappearing after the first raid, and the stock closed materially higher. This is also in the face of the weakness in sugar. There was good buying in Atchison, St. Paul, Rock Island, Wheeling, Lake Erie, and Louisville, New Albany and Chicago, though an accident on the last named road weakened the stock for some time. Reading again led the list in point of activity, but Union Pacific was the actual leader of the market, and it displayed considerable strength without making any material change, its strength without making any material change, its range for the day being within 1 per cent. The other Gould stocks were very quiet, and Missours Pacific in particular, but the h tter displayed more strength than the others and closed with a substantial advance. The the others and closed with a substantial advance. The boom in New England seems to have culminated and the execution of a few stop-orders today rattled it off 1 per cent, but it seems to be the Intention of its managers to permit no decline at present, and it was afterward held steady to firm. The only features among the low-priced shares today were Kansas and Texas preferred, and Susquehanna and Western stocks, but late in the day Richmond and West Point again came to the front, but too late to West Point again came to the front, but too late to make an important gain. The general list was strong at the opening, but after a temporary set-back by the bears, it railied and became dull within the narrow limits, and when buying was resumed in the last hour again moved moderately, the close being active and firm to strong, generally at insignificant changes from last night's figures. The active list, however, shows no large gains, while sugar lost 1 per cent. Omain is up 1%, Chicago Gas 1¼, Lackawauna 1¼, Reading, Distillers and Missouri Pacific, each 1 per cent. and Delaware and Hudson, which was the feature of the late trading, 2 per cent. Closed steady: sales 47,100 bales. Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular. NEW YORK, January 12 .- Future contracts in Live pool this morning were 3-64 lower; a further decline of one to two po his was advised before the close was due, so our cables report to the liquidation of "strad-dle" operations, which had previously involved the purchase in Liverpool against the sales in this market. As futures here under the liquidation have declined more rapidly than in Liverpool, there is naturally considerable demand to cover sales here and dispose of purchases in Liverpool. An opening decline of four to five points was established in our market, but the buying incidental to the liquidation of the New York end of the operations above described absorbed nearly all the offerings and a reaction set in that by 1 o'clock had carried the market back eight points, and four points above last evening's closing. The receipts at New Orleans today seem hardly likely to exceed 29,000 for the day, and at the other ports Galveston alone excepted, the movement is exceptionally large. Much interest is fell in the crop estimate of Messrs. R. T. Wilson & Co., which is understood will be mailed to their correspondents today. The crop estimate of this firm last year was more correct than any other authority, and their views this season will have no little weight. Up to this writing, however, the market has failed to secure any information concerning it. After 1 o'clock, the market eased away slightly upon the liquidation of some tired holders of long cotton, but the recession in values was small and fully recovered before the close, which was steady at about three points over last evening's figures. The purchases of a very prominent drm in years past, probably the leaders of the trade, have had an exceedingly reassuring effect, and for the first time in several days the bear raid made regularly toward the close of the market: has failed of any impression upon prices. Receipts at the ports are 42,000 bales against 17,000 bales last year. The interior movement at the towns of Memphis, St. Louis and Augusta is 5,000 bales less than last week up to this evening.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions. CHICAGO, January 12.—The slumpiness displayed by the wheat market yesterday was continued today, and another ceut decline was ladded to the drop of 1½c recorded yesterday. A good deal of long wheat which has been stubbornly held in the face of the decime which has occurred since last. Wednesday was on the market today, holders having apparently lost hope About the only demand was from the shorts, many of whom covered on the break. May opened be lower at 91; fluctuated during the forenoon between 90% and 91%, broke in the afternoon to 90%, and closed steady at 90%. Trading in corn was dull and fluctuations of the narrowest. The market showed a shade of weakness, largely due to sympathy with the weakness in wheat. Onts were duil, steady and without feature.

Hog products were stronger and higher. There was which has occurred since last Wednesday was on the Lamson Bros. & Co.'s Grain Letter. CHICAGO, January 12 .- The selling fever which wa CHICAGO, January 12.—The selling fiver which was started by the government report on the fish instant still continues in the grain markets of the world. The leading feature which affects our markets, and in a great measure the finances of the world, is the depressed condition of the cotton market and the financial strain which prevails among all dealers and manufacturers of cotton goods. The difficulty in getting wheat to the seaboard and fairly large stocks in England and on the continent is the check upon export howing. and on the continent is the check upon 'export buying. From the past shipments it is reasonable to presume that India and other competing countries have disposed of nearly all their surplus grain. It may be that the stocks in store and on passage to Europe may prevent any large buying in this market until the latter part of February, when purchases can be made for April and May delivery carried to the seahoard by water and exported at the usual low ocean freight reasonable provides a property of the present that provides when the passages traced in terrell is zero. and on the continent is the check upon export buying rate that prevails when the passenger travel is very large. The frading was larger than usual today, but the market was not strong enough to relieve the heavy pressure felt by the local and outside stocks, which press heavily upon the market. Low grades and samale lots of spring wheat were about 1c lower: winter ple lots of spring wheat were about ic lower; winter was nominal and unchanged with good demand; offerings were light.

Corn was unchanged with a fairly good trade.

Onts were about ½c lower.

Provisiona were strong with a fairly good trade at a higher range of prices. We believe that the hug product is the one thing that cannot be depressed by the low prices of cotton or inancial stringency. It is very cheap food, and there are millions of people who want it and must have it.

It's the policy of this store to make prices relatively lower than the average and to give best money's worth under every condition. That very principle leads to necessary reductions in December to keep pace with the tendency of values.

No bright person expects to pay as much this week as a month ago, and no house that does business in the spirit of the times would think of asking it. In conclusion I will say that I trust the papers and public generally will let Daniels and his case rest until a pury may pass upon his guilt or innocence, and I trust I will not again be forced to be to the comments. Respectfully.

FRANK R. WALKER,

Attorney for Peter Daniels.

A SHARP COLLOQUY Between Judge Clark and Mr. F. R.

ABOUT A WITNESS WHO DISAPPEARED,

Walker, in the Peter Daniels Case,

And the Case Goes Over to the Spring Term, When the Witness May Be on Hand.

Peter Daniels will be spared to his Sunday school class for several moons yet to come.

And,instead of going to the gallows or going free, he will continue the instruction of his pupils in the ways of righteousness, behind the bars of the Fulton county jail.

He is not at all dismayed at the outlook.

Daniels's case was called for trial yesterday, but an important witness was not present, and the case could not be proceeded with.

The witness was Ed Wright, the negro who was shot at the time the murder, with which Daniels is charged, was committed. It has been claimed by the defense that Wright did the killing.

When the case was called Solicitor Hill was present for the state, and Mr. Frank R. Walker epresented the accused.

And a very spirited scene marked the beginning of Pete Daniels's new trial. Solicitor Hill first occupied the attention of the court. "May it please the court," said he, "under the court.

"May it please the court," said he, "under the existing circumstances, I must ask that this case be carried over to the spring term. One of the state's principal witnesses has been run off, and I do not want to continue this case without him. This witness, Ed Wright, who was himself shot on the night of the murder, and who has been charged with it, has left, being frightened away by the charge. The charge is a preposterous one, but it scared the negro away. He witnessed the shooting, and it is very material that he be here."

Mr. Frank R. Walker addressed the court.

"I am just as anxious," said he, "to have Ed Wright here as my brother, Hill, is. I advanced the money to have him brought here, but when the officer went for him he had been turned loose. I am willing to have this case go over to the spring term, as Mr. Hill suggests."

"I don't accuse anybody," said Mr. Hill.

gests."
"I don't accuse anybody," said Mr. Hill,
"I state the facts, which speak for themselves.
Ed Wright came here before upon a summons.
He was not airaid, but afterwards he was accused—arrested charged with the murder, and, escaping, has fied the country. These are the Judge Richard Clark then entered the list with his war paint on.

"The case of Peter Daniels," said be, "will be continued to the spring term."
And turning to Solicitor Hill, Judge Clark said in a very determined tone:
"If you can find who is responsible for frightening this witness away. I will proceed against him to the limit of the law. If a lawyer did it I'll move to disbar him."
He looked straight at Mr. Walker as he finished this remark.

Ho looked straight is the distribution of the straight with the st "I intimate nothing," said Judge Clark, "I speak out plainly what I want to say."
"I want to say." Mr. Walker began, but Judge Clark held up his hand.
"I don't want to hear anything from you," said he.

"I don't want to hear anything from you," said he.

"I have here," Mr. Walker continued,
"Wright's evidence at the last trial of Daniels, and I am willing for that to be used now."
But Judge Clark wouldn't have it.
"Daniels," he said, "will not be tried until the state is scoured for Wright. I think he can be produced by March."

"All right," said Mr. Walker.

"I granted Peter Daniels," Judge Clark, continued, "a new trial upon a very extraordinary motion. It was claimed that new evidence had been found, and now this principal witness cannot be found, Daniels had as fair a trial as ever a man had, and now after this new trial is granted the only eye witness to the murder is not here.
It's outrageous."

Peter Daniels was carried back to the prisoner's room; Solicitor Hill called another case; Mr. Frank Walker turned away, the scene was over.

Daniels was carried back to the jail, and again entered into the jail life which he had

For some unaccountable reason Wright had been turned loose, and Detective Bedford came back without him.

Wright has a very unsavory reputation, and swanted here on one or two charges. He is traid to come back to Atlanta on account of these charges, as much as on account of the charge of murder.

Card from Mr. Walkor.

Atlanta, Ga., January 12.—In the afternoon papers of this date I see a published statement of an occurrence in the criminal branch of the superior court between Judge R. H. Clark, Soheltor C. D. Hill and myself in connection with the continuance of the Peter Daniels case. These publications do me a great hijustice.

Heretofore I have avoided replying to newspaper comment, but atter this evening's publications I feel it my duty to say, as well for myself as for my client's defense, from any imputation of misconduct in "getting rid of Ed Wright, the principal witness for the prosecution, that any such an imputation of misconduct on my part coming from whatever source it may is absolutely and unconditionally false.

I undertook Peter Daniels's defense purely as a matter of charity, and at Daniels's urgent request. I have never received a cent other than $5 from his aged and decrepid mother, and I have paid out more in expenses than I have received.

No one else has pald me a cent for my services in connection with this case from Daniels or from any one else, nor do I expect any fee, and yet I shall perform my duties in the case just the same as if this poor, ignorant negro was a wealthy man and my fees propoitonately large; and I neither solict nor will accept the guidance of newspapers or any one else in my conduct of the case.

Whilst preparing Daniels's motion for a new trial, learned facts that I though would justify me in asking the assistance of the Decatur force to clear up some of Ed Wright's conduct before, and at the time of, and since the murder of Sylora Lyle. For this purpose I went to Captain Couch's office and gave him the facts at J had obtained, and the names of witnesses where the murder of inform me."

"I told him that he could see these witnesses, and possibly, through them, learn of others that would verify their statemen

A NEW ORDER,

Regulating the Make-Up of Mails in the Atlanta Postoffice.

THERE WAS NO COURT IN COLUMBUS.

Big Custom Receipts-Damage Suit Trial Today-A Liquor Dealer in Trouble.

On account of the great increase in the amount of mail passing through the Atlanta postoffice, Superintendent L. M. Terrell, of the railway mail service, has made a new rule regulating the time for letters to be posted in order to be made up for out-going trains.

order to be made up for out-going trains.

The rules of the postoffice department specify that the reception of mail shall cease one hour before the departure of the train on which it is to be sent. But heretofore, for the convenience of the public, the Atlanta postoffice officials have diverted from this rule, and received mail up to within thirty minutes before the departure of trains. An order issued yesterday, however, changes the accustomed rule and adopts the regulation rule. On account of the large number of letters that are posted daily only a few minutes before the departure of trains, the following order was issued by Superintendent Terrell:

"On account of the increase in mail matter in the Atlanta, Ga., postoffice, it has become necessary to close the mails one hour before the departure of trains. This order will go into effect February 1, 1892, and the public will be governed accordingly. All mail deposited one hour before the departure of trains will be promptly dispatched.

In tendering his resignation Mr. Oglesby submitted his reasons in this letter:

To the Directors Commercial Travelers' Savings Bank—Gentlemen: You will remember when some time before the final organization of your board a resolution was passed tendering me the office of president, that in responding I wrote you on September 10th that the state of my health made it impossible for me, in justice to the bank, to assume that responsibility. When at a later date I reluctantly yielded to an unusual pressure and accepted the presidency, I hoped for such improvement as would enable me to give the duties of the office proper attention. I now find that inprovement as would enable me to give the dutter of the office proper attention. The New York Life Insurance Company and the Attitude of the Press.

It is interesting to note that The New York Times' campaign of abuse against this company is about to be brought to an end by the appearance of the commissioner's report as to the condition of the company. Anticipating this, The Times testif recently said, commenting upon the company's business: "The policy-holders are to be congratulated on this remarkable evidence of their company's strength." That conservative paper, The Sun, in its issue of January 6th, says:

"From ageneral review of the various publications of which the New York Life Insurance Company has of late been the subject, we should say that that corporation has had to sustain an extraordinary attack of blackmailers, or worse. The pursuit of the company and its officers is the most vindictive and vicious that we have witnessed, and is so obviously dictated by motives of personal malice and private interest that it is not any wonder that it has so far proven a total failure."

The Press of January 7th says:

"Although the result of the investigation of the affairs of the New York Life Insurance Company by the State Insurance Department has not yet been made public, it is understood by the business world that the company will be proven to be not only one of the greatest but one of the soundest and best managed financial institutions. The investigation, made at the request of the New York Life, has been most thorough and most complete, and has been conducted by men acknowledged even by the defamers of the company and its officers to be experts of the greatest ability and unimpeachable honesty." and the Attitude of the Press.

Contributions of Lumber and Brick So-d licited to House the People-Collections:to Be Taken Up Sunday.

The marks of the cyclone are still coming to light, and some strange things have been discovered. On Candy Betsey's place, in Henry county, the other day, it was discovered that the cyclone had dropped some letters and wearing apparel after whirling them through the air across two counties. They were taken from a house in Fayetteville and whisked over Fayette and Clayton counties into the edge of

The circumstances attending their identification were somewhat singular. Mr. Hightower, who came up from Jones-boro yesterday, gives this account of the find:

Apparel Carried Over Two Counties. We saw something on the farm which appeared to have been blown in by the storm, and on coming near to the deposit, they saw a number of letters, with a child's dress and a lady's nightgown. The letters were examined for the purpose of finding where the things came from, and the signature of Mr. Knox, of Fayetteville, was found at the bottom. The letters were written to Mrs. Knox before she was married, and were, in fact, love letters. was married, and were, in fact, love letters. Of course it would not be proper to publish the contents, for it was by accident that we came to know it, and I sympathize with a man whose love letters are scattered over three counties. As Mr. Knox lives at Fayetteville, we made inquiry to find whether the child's dress and the gown came from the same place. It turns out that they did come from the same house where Mr. Knox lived. The wearing apparel and letters were from the same house where Mr. Knox lived. The wearing apparel and letters were gathered up by the whirlwind, which seems to have carried them until it got tred and then sent them whirling off to one side. The farm

"Another wonderful exhibition of the storm's fury is the curious condition of an old locust tree at Fayetteville. The trunk is two feet through and seems to have had strength enough to withstand the storm. But the remarkable fact is that the bark was torn off on both sides of it, and every twig on the tree was twisted off. The trunk looks like a tree which has been between two lines of battle and has been cut by bullets on both sides."

on which they were found is at least two or three miles from the main track of the cy-

The Suffering at Fayetteville. Mr. Eugene Blalock came up from Jones-boro yesterday and called at The Constitu-tion office with Mr. Hightower.

"I have come to tell you what you have done," said he. "When The Constitution got to the little town of Empire, down in south Georgia, it was read by Mrs. John Hightower, who saw the appeal for help for the sufferers at Fayetteville. Immediately she went to work a read of the little littl at Fayetteville. Immediately she went to work and raised $121 in that little place of not at Fayetteville. Immediately she went to work and raised $121 in that little place of not over a hundred inhabitants.

"Jonesboro raised $150, and the contributions made in Atlanta with those of Empire and Jonesboro will make something over $600. We have not yet heard from the Sunday collections. This will do a great deal of good, but it doesn't begin to cover the actual necessities of the case. Those people, nearly a hundred of them, are dependent upon their neighbors for every meal they get, as well as for shelter from the weather. They haven't a cent to buy anything and the situation is the worst I ever saw the people placed in. They are exactly in the condition Job was when the Lord killed his sons and daughters and destroyed his substance.

"We haven't raised money enough yet to relieve the immediate wants of the sufferers, and we will have to look beyond that, for there is no disputing the fact that something has got to be done to help these people on their feet again. I hoped that a fund might be raised to lend them for rebuilding their houses. Perhaps a better way would be to solicit contributions of building material, and ask the railroads to hauli to Fayetteville. Once there, the homeless people would take it and build houses themselves. They are all hard workers. If we could get contributions of lumber, brick enough to build chimneys, and nails and hinges enough to put the houses together, those people would get back the hearthstones that were swept away by the cyclone.

"Of course they would not expect to build."

"Of course they would not expect to build good houses as they had, but if they could t brick enough to build twenty-five or thirty plain, one-story chimneys, and lumber enough to surround them, and shingles enough to raise a roof over their heads, it would shelter them from the rest of this bitter winter. I believe there are some mills and brick-makers and lumbermen who will help them liberally if the railroads will haul the stuff, as the At lanta and Florida road agrees to do."

Let Sunday Be Fayetteville's Day. "The people who have been heard from have made very liberal contributions, but it have made very liberal contributions, but it seems absolutely necessary to carry Fayette-ville's appeal to the whole state. It seems to me that the easiest way to do it would be for the churches in every town in Georgia to take up a collection for Fayette-ville next Sunday. "The appeal did not go out in time to reach them last Sabbath, but they will all hear it by next Sunday. I know of no better means of sending out the appeal than through the columns of The Constitution. The mayor and council of Fayetteville have sent letters to some of the churches, but it is impossible to reach them all, and the facts are now understood. The men who signed that appeal did not exaggerate the suffering and distress at Fayetteville. Indeed, none of the accounts in the newspapers have told half the tad story. I have made three trips to the town and it is enough to make one's heart ache to see it.

who will apply the contributions, may be relied upon to do and faithful care, but in the most judicious manner, so as to make the contributions go as far as possible."

John Sledge, a motorman on the Marietta line, sustained perhaps fatal injuries through a fall last evening.

Sledge fell on his head and was knocked un-conscious. As quickly as possible he was carried to the street car stables. Dr. Vining was called and dressed his wounds. A long, deep gash on the top of his head made an ugly, dangerous wound, and at 8:30 o'clock the man was carefully moved to his home.

The injury is a decidedly serious one, and the physician had grave doubts about his conthe physician had grave d dition last evening.

Contributions of Lumber and Brick Solicited to House the People-Collections to Be Taken Up Sunday.

The marks of the cyclone are still coming to light, and some strange things have been discovered. On Candy Betsey's place, in Henry county, the other day, it was discovered that the cyclone had dropped some letters and wearing apparel after whirling them through the air across two counties. They were taken from a house in Fayetteville and whisked over Fayette and Clayton counties into the edge of

The circumstances attending their identification were somewhat singular.

Mr. Hightower, who came up from Jonesboro yesterday, gives this account of the find:

Apparel Carried Over Two Counties. "We saw something on the farm which ap-peared to have been blown in by the storm, and on coming near to the deposit, they saw a number of letters, with a child's dress and a lady's nightgown. The letters were examined for the purpose of finding where the things came from, and the signature of Mr. Knox, of Fayetteville, was found at the bottom. The letters were written to Mrs. Knox before she was married, and were, in fact, love letters Of course it would not be proper to publish the contents, for it was by accident that we came to know it, and I sympathize with a man whose love letters are scattered over three counties. As Mr. Knox lives at Fayetteville, we made inquiry to find whether the child's dress and the gown came from the same place. dress and the gown came from the same place. It turns out that they did come from the same house where Mr. Knox lived. The wearing apparel and letters were gathered up by the whirlwind, which seems to have carried them until it got tired and then sent them whirling off to one side. The farm on which they were found is at least two or three miles from the main track of the cyclone.

"Another wonderful exhibition of the storm's fury is the curious condition of an old locust tree at Fayetteville. The trunk is two feet through and seems to have had strength enough to withstand the storm. But the re-markable fact is that the bark was torn off on both sides of it, and every twig on the tree was twisted off. The trunk looks like a tree which has been between two lines of battle and has been cut by bullets on both sides."

The Suffering at Fayetteville.

Mr. Eugene Blalock came up from Jones-boro yesterday and called at The Constitu-tion office with Mr. Hightower. "I have come to tell you what you have done," said he. "When The Constitution got to the little town of Empire, down in south Georgia, it was read by Mrs. John Hightower, got to the little town of Empire, down in south Georgia, it was read by Mrs. John Hightower, who saw the appeal for help for the sufferers at Fayetteville. Immediately she went to work and raised $121 in that little place of not over a hundred inhabitants.

"Jonesboro raised $150, and the contributions made in Atlanta with those of Empire and Jonesboro will make something over $600. We have not yet heard from the Sunday collections. This will do a great deal of good, but it doesn't begin to cover the actual necessities of the case. Those people, nearly a hundred of them, are dependent upon their neighbors for every meal they get, as well as for shelter from the weather. They haven't a cent to buy anything and the situation is the worst I ever saw the people placed in. They are exactly in the condition Job was when the Lord killed his sons and daughters and destroyed his substance.

"We haven't raised money enough yet to relieve the immediate wants of the sufferers, and we will have to look beyond that, for there is no disputing the fact that something has got to be done to help these people on their feet again. I hoped that a fund might be raised to lend them for rebuilding their houses. Perhaps a better way would be to solicit contributions of building material, and ask the railroads to haul it to Fayetteville. Once there, the homeless people would take it and ask the railroads to haul it to Favetteville. Once there, the homeless people would take it and build houses themselves. They are all hard workers. If we could get contributions of lumber, brick enough to build chimneys, and nails and hinges enough to put the house gether, those people would get back the hearthstones that were swept away by the hearthstones that were swept away by colorocyclone.

"Of course they would not expect to build as good houses as they had, but if they could get brick enough to build twenty-five or thirty plain, one-story chimneys, and lumber enough to surround them, and shingles enough to raise a roof over their heads, it would shelter them from the rest of this bitter winter. I believe there are some mills and brick-makers and lumbermen who will help them liberally if the railroads will haul the stuff, as the At lanta and Florida road agrees to do."

Let Sunday Be Fayetteville's Day

Let Sunday Be Fayetteville's Day.

"The people who have been heard from have made very liberal contributions, but it seems absolutely necessary to carry Fayetteville's appeal to the whole state. It seems to me that the easiest way to do it would be for the churches in every town in Georgia to take up a collection for Fayetteville next Sunday.

"The appeal did not go out in time to reach them last Sabbath, but they will all hear it by next Sunday. I know of no better means of sending out the appeal than through the columns of The Constitution. The mayor and council of Fayetteville have sent letters to some of the churches, but it is impossible to reach them all, and the facts are now understood. The men who signed that appeal did not exaggerate the suffering and distress at Fayetteville. Indeed, none of the accounts in the newspapers have told half the lad story. I have made three trips to the town and it is enough to make one's heart ache to see it.

"The mayor and council of Fayetteville."

"The mayor and council of Fayetteville, who will apply the contributions, may be relied upon to do it, not only with fairness and faithful care, but in the most judicious manner, so as to make the contributions go as far as possible."

A MOTORMAN FALLS,

And His Head is Badly Cut-In a Dangerous Condition. John Siedge, a motorman on the Marietta line, sustained perhaps fatal injuries through a fall last evening.

* He was going to his home on the Boulevard. When next to the Equitable he walked into an open place which the rain had washed out, and was precipitated to the basement of the huilding.

Sledge fell on his head and was knocked unconscious. As quickly as possible he was carried to the street car stables. Dr. Vining was called and dressed his wounds. A long, deep gash on the top of his head made an ugly, dangerous wound, and at 8:30 o'clock the man was carefully moved to his home.

The injury is a decidedly serious one, and the physician had grave doubts about his condition last evening.

OVERCOAT

There isn't any novelty in our methods of selling Overcoats. No more novelty, at any rate, than might strike you if you saw a college athlete poising a pick in a silver mine, or Booth illuminating a super's place on an amateur stage, or if you plucked a dandelion while strolling today through the suburbs. The season was an anti-climax. Outdoor bushes were almost killed with kindness. Overcoats the same. Almost June temperature in mid-December. The gentle weather was our business hardship. We now see fit to change some of the prices. While about it we change them greatly. And the whole novelty of what we are doing is the surprise—the surprise of our selling. our selling
